Flow with the Infinite

Psychedelic Sound Chair
Experience

Sound Light Vibration

The Sound Chair is uniquely designed for deeply embodied inner journeys. High fidelity speakers built into the chair and smaller speakers placed directly on the body channel music and vibration throughout the body, focusing on the heart, sacral, and root chakra areas. This custom made soundscape becomes the carrier wave of a deeply grounded journey through the psychedelic inner world.

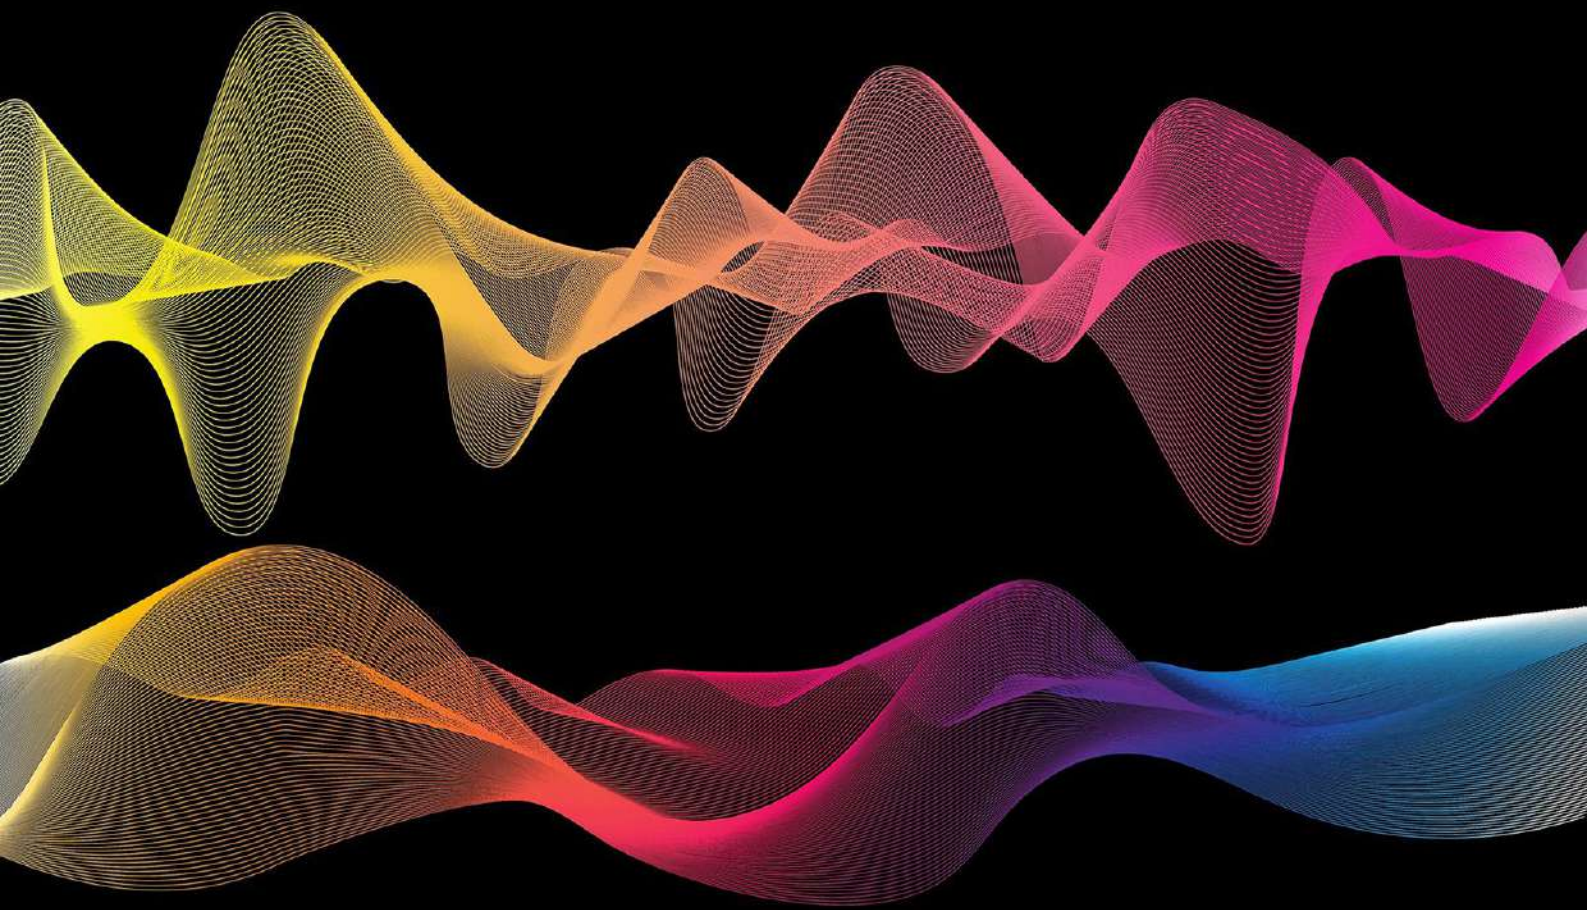

Transcendence

The first part of the journey is about transcending your normal perspective and gaining deep insights into yourself

This is supported by music, vibration and light as the trip peaks

The optional light bar produces stunning visuals

Embodiment

Psychedelic experiences are often challenging to integrate somatically. This becomes much easier when the body is central to the experience. In comparison with the normal psychedelic experience, the Sound Chair offers a deeply embodied expansion of the whole being.

Healing

The custom-made combination of sound and vibration, when channeled through the body, allow for deep relaxation and new somatic awareness, often accompanied with deep embodied release of emotion. This means that we become aware through the body, experiencing states of awareness we didn't know were possible.

The Nature of Reality

"Immediately after that, I was launched into transcendent consciousness. I was one and had always been one with everything. I existed outside of time and outside of space. I could see myself being scared of this experience and I could see that I was scared because I had misunderstood how life works and what psychedelics do. From my limited perspective before, of course I would have been scared.

But where I was now, I was outside of fear. I was aware of fear, but could never be afraid. I could see how I had strived my whole life, working hard, and how that was useful if you want to get somewhere.. Very understandable. But that there is nowhere to get to.

I could see my trauma and my intense fear of that trauma and also that it was a lot for a human to feel. Understandable that I was afraid, but actually nothing special or unusual.

I saw that you never realise your true nature. Because you have always been your true nature there is nothing to realise.

Next, the trip evolved into an exploration of non-duality. It felt like my awareness went to the level of neurons. I could see the vast complexity of the neurons firing and the simplicity of each neuron - mechanical, precise and mechanistic. It felt like this reality was hiding just below the surface of our experience as endlessly complex dancing joy.

I saw how reality is one and many, and that a quality of nothingness is that it can be split into something. That reality endlessly explores itself through the creation of and merging of duality in an endless dance of opposites. Openness dissolving into closedness. And when it's most closed, it dissolves into openness again. I saw that dualities are made out of the same substance. Openness and closedness are one essence. And the peak of openness is openness to closedness. And the peak of closedness is being attached to openness. So when you're the most open you are also the most closed and when you are the most closed, you are also the most open.

I could see how reality delights in these games of hide and seek. Suspense and surprise. In a beautiful unconditional fluidity."

TRIP REPORT 2

Heart Opening

"I was laughing and crying tears of joy for the whole session. I realised that love is the ultimate reality. At every moment I was embodied and present, but also one with the entire universe in the experience of boundless love, which I was, and which we all are. I felt my own aliveness on a completely new level, as if I'd been sleeping my whole life away until that moment. As the experience deepened, the sound, light and vibration became one great ecstatic harmony of fluid aliveness. I entered a flow of deep insight into my life and relationships. I could feel these insights heal old emotional wounds - they worked directly within my body, stitching together new patterns of spaciousness, clarity and joy out of the fabric of my inner being. It was a profoundly moving and positive experience which I will remember until I die. I remain profoundly grateful to everyone involved, and recommend it unreservedly."

TRIP REPORT 3

Healing old wounds

"This was my first-ever psychedelic experience, and it took place in the chair. I entered with the intention of overcoming the fear of what others thought of me and to feel worthy just as I was. The journey took me through a powerful, emotional timeline—from early childhood through painful memories of bullying and rejection. I felt completely blasted open, seeing and feeling long-buried experiences and wounds with vivid clarity. It was as though I was wrapped in a velvet blanket, held safely while facing deep emotional pain. My body felt like an open book, and I had a flashlight to explore where trauma was stuck—gently finding it, feeling it, and bringing it into awareness.

The experience was both visual and deeply emotional, allowing me to reconnect with forgotten memories and feel the emotions I'd suppressed. The chair's gentle vibrations acted like a soft massage, loosening tension and helping my body relax into the process. Afterward, I felt completely open—my body, especially my legs and core, felt wide open and alive in a way I'd never experienced. Though I was deeply sensitive and raw in the days following, I also felt more connected to myself. It was a beautiful, profound initiation into this work."
